

THE POND LIGHTS FILE

A documented UAP case from the June 12, 2026 release.

The location stayed redacted.
The lights did not stay private.

LOCATION REDACTED

LOCATION REDACTED

For years, a resident in the Northeastern United States reported lights near his secluded pond.

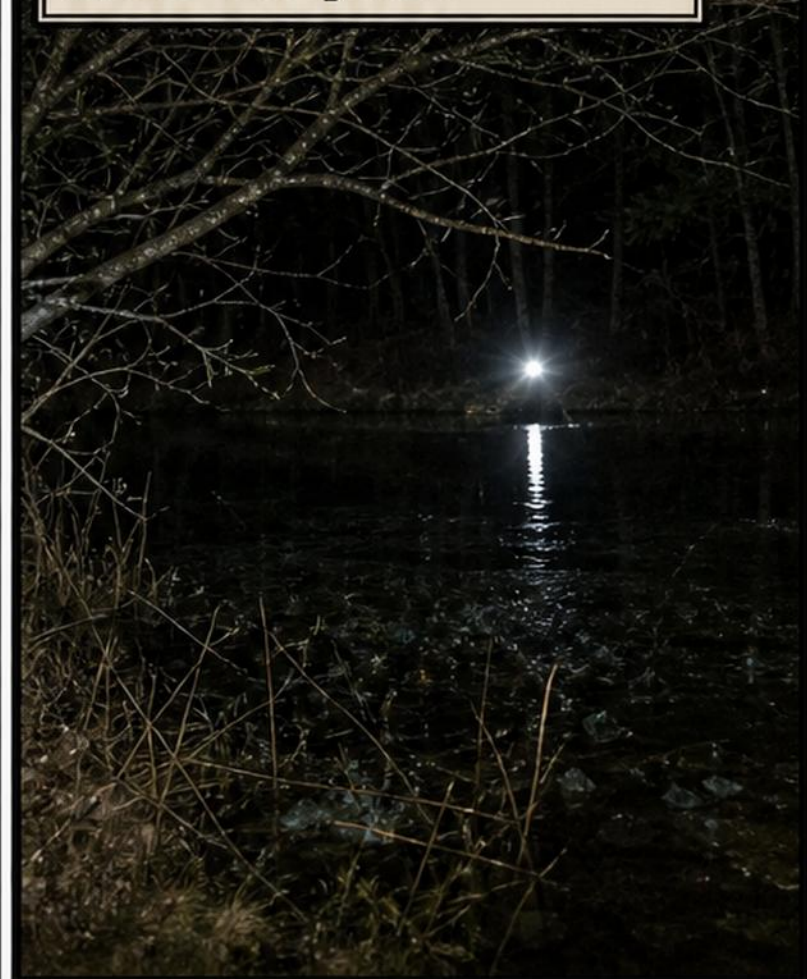

The file says some objects came within about 200 yards of his home.

They hovered, moved, appeared above the horizon, and dropped into the trees.

At times, they appeared close to the ground, in the waterline, or just above the pond.

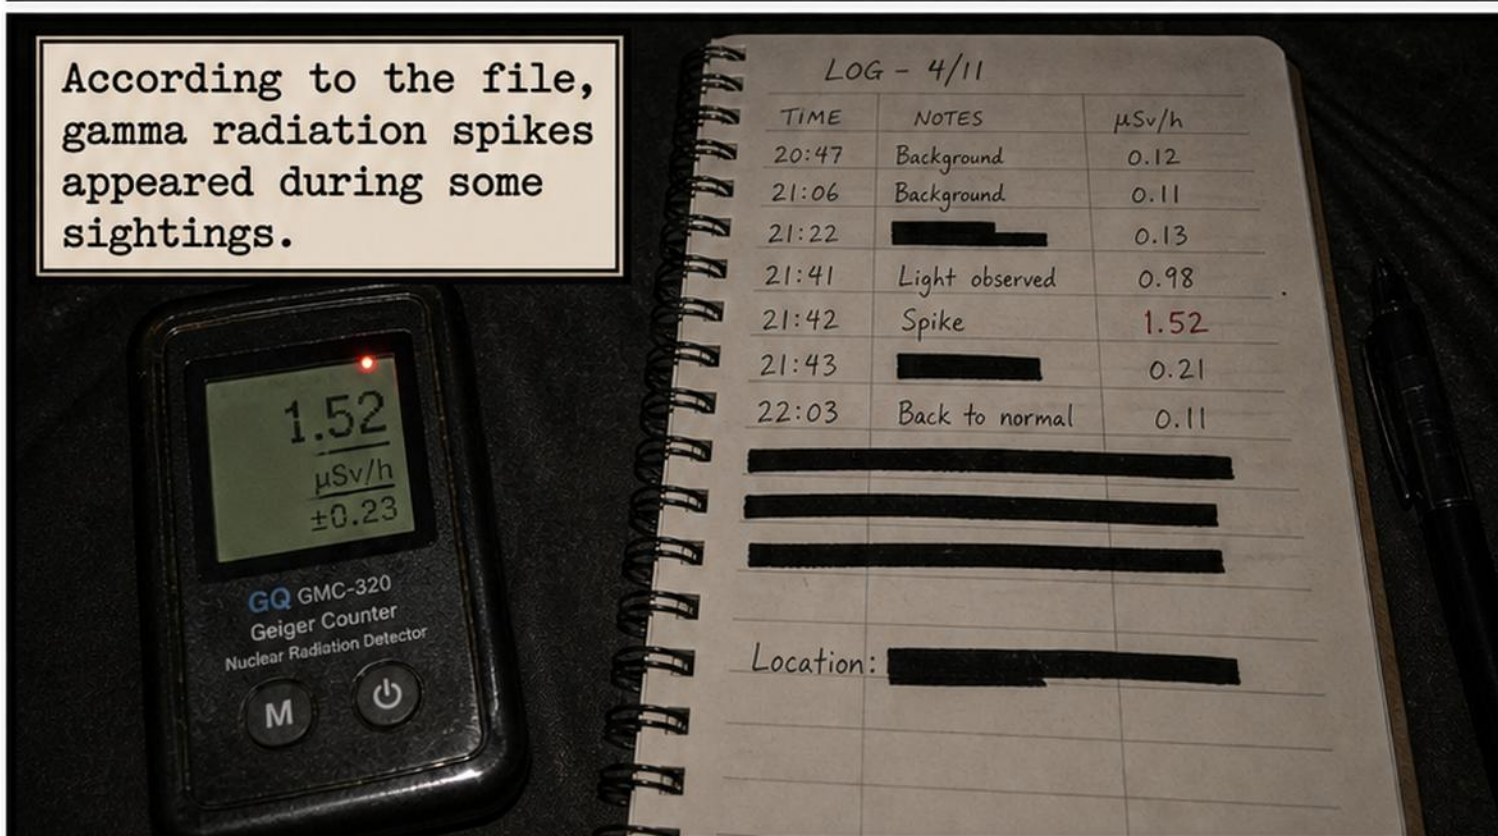

He set up trail cameras and sensors across the property.

According to the file, gamma radiation spikes appeared during some sightings.

He also reported unusual effects on electronics and GPS data.

The report did not
rely on one set of
eyes alone.

A neighbor also
reported seeing
the orbs.

The names stayed
hidden behind
redactions.

But the behavior in
the file was specific:
hovering, pulsing,
vanishing, and
returning.

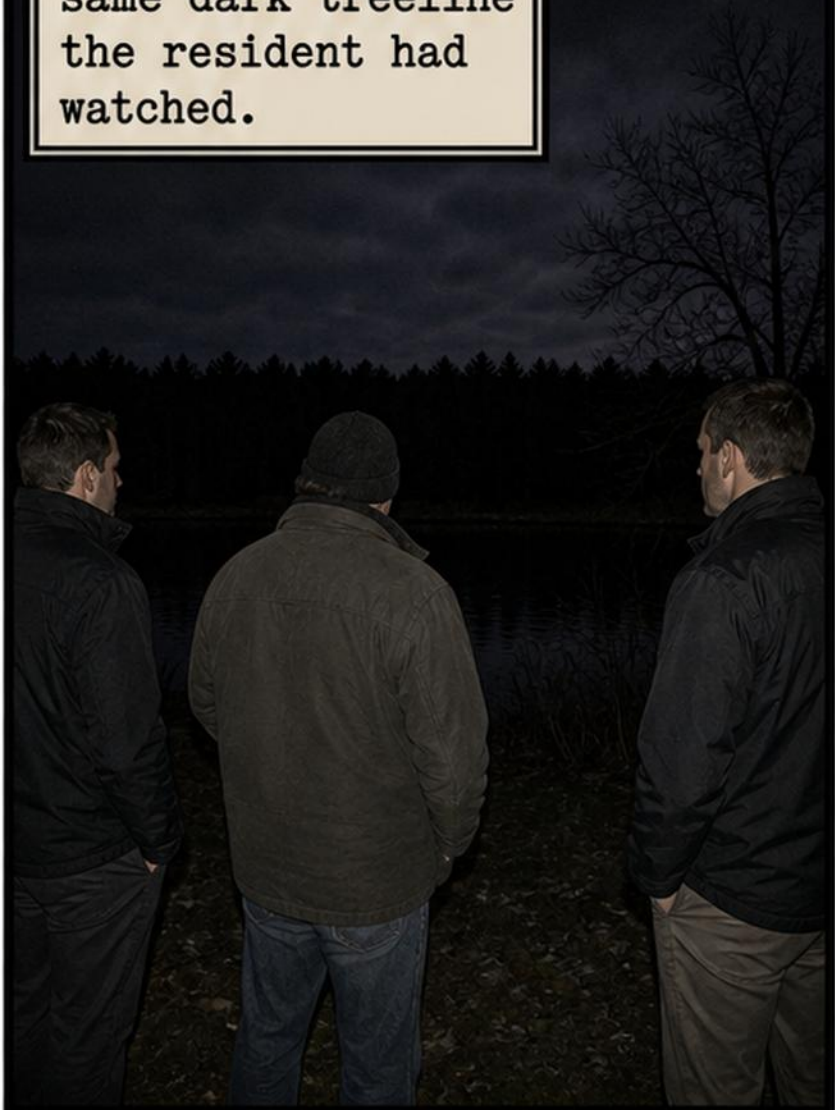

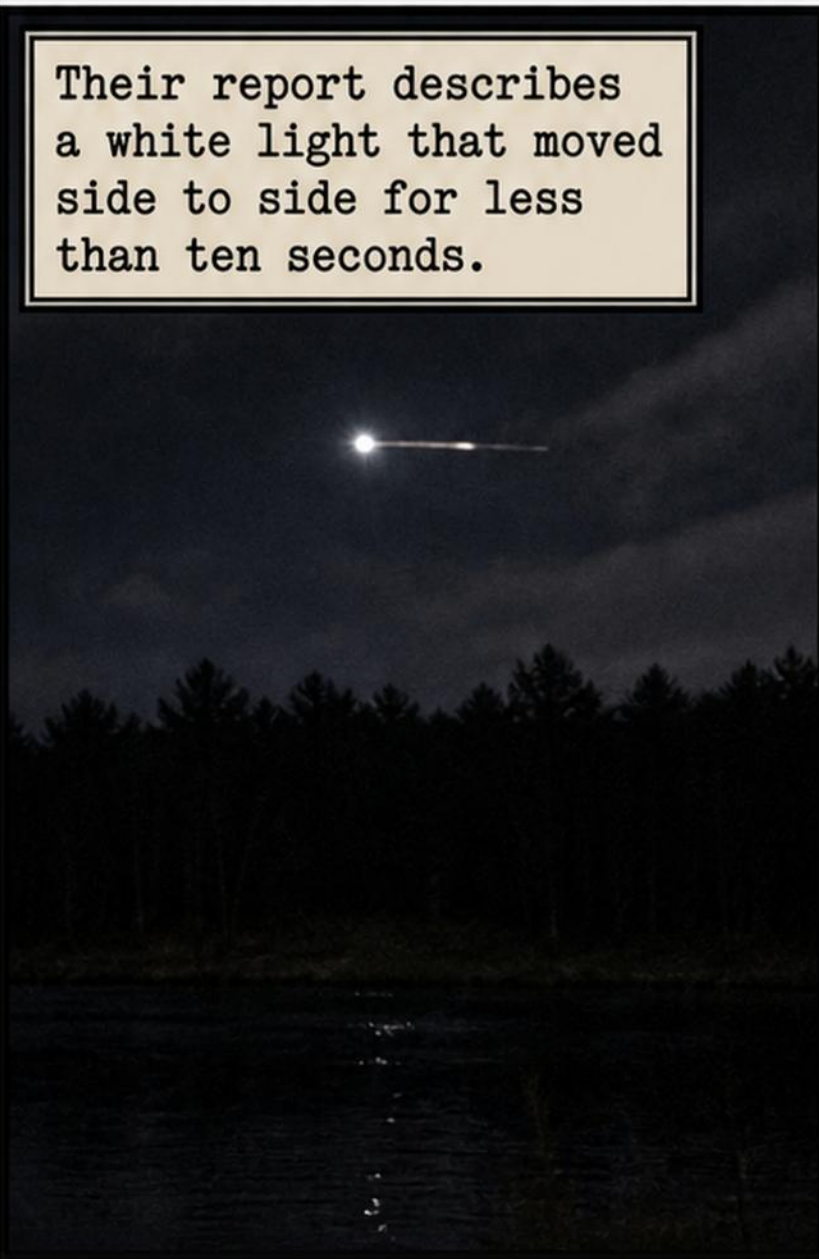

In November 2024,
two FBI agents
visited the property.

They watched the
same dark treeline
the resident had
watched.

Their report describes
a white light that moved
side to side for less
than ten seconds.

Then it disappeared.

More lights appeared
at the western treeline.

Some pulsed with a
white-blue hue before
they vanished.

The agents also reported
broad plumes of light
followed by red or
white flashes.

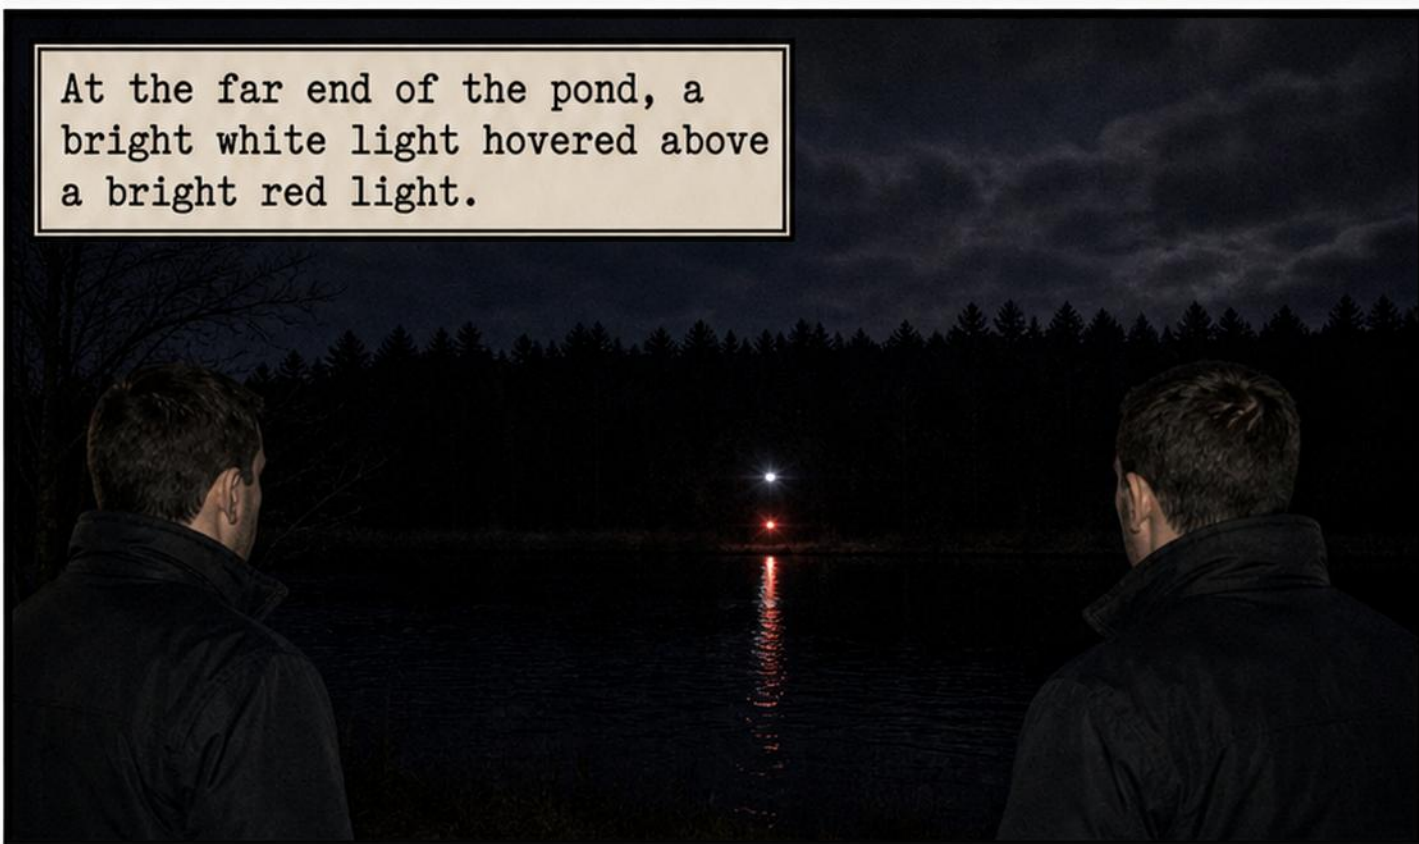

The photographs were
blurry, but the
observation was
written down.

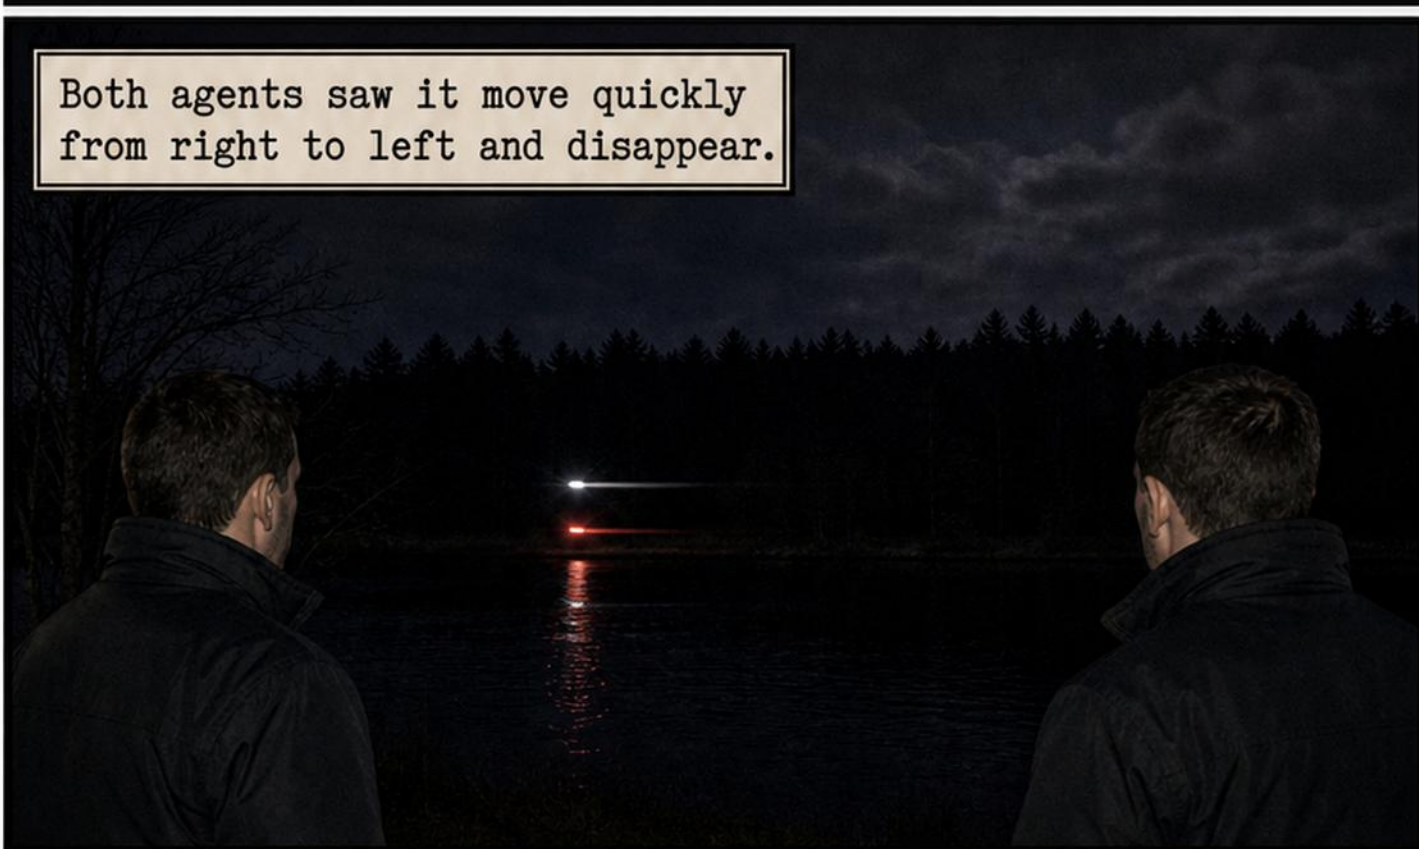

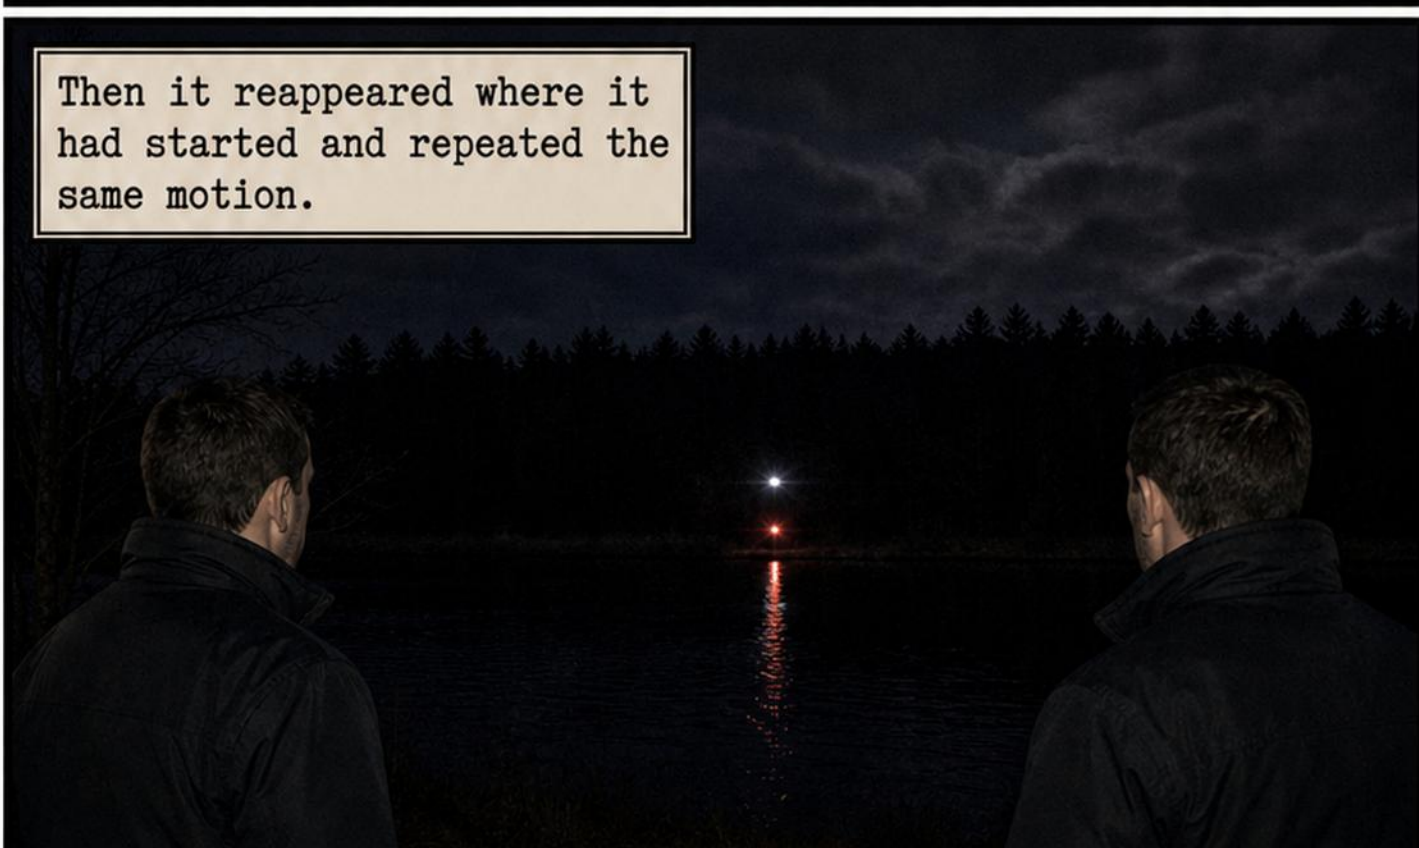

At the far end of the pond, a bright white light hovered above a bright red light.

Both agents saw it move quickly from right to left and disappear.

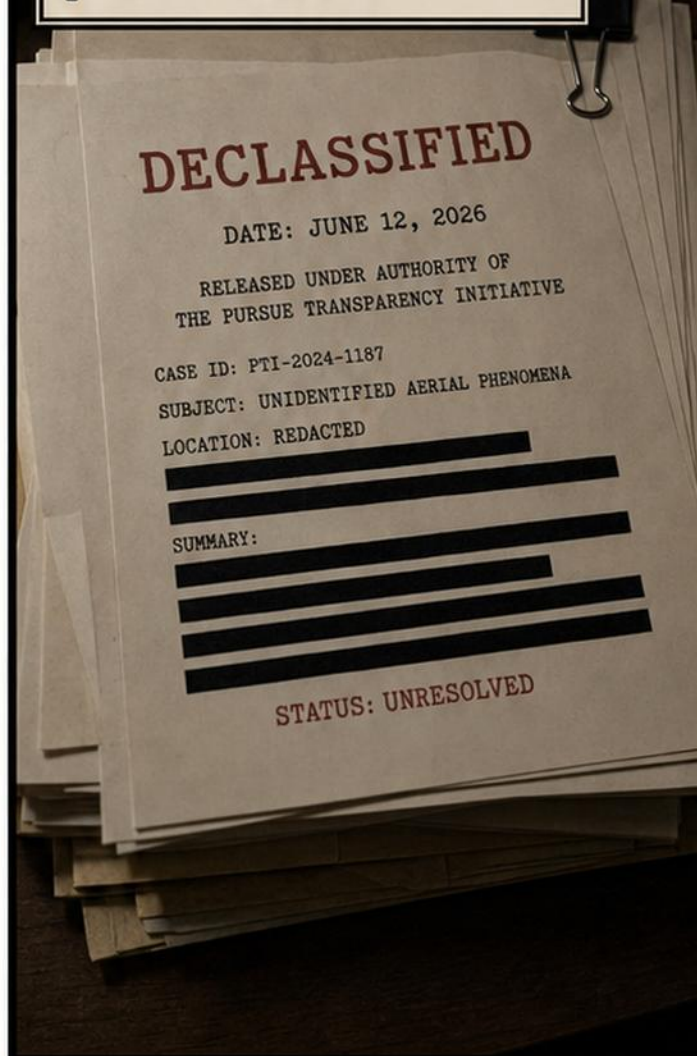

Then it reappeared where it had started and repeated the same motion.

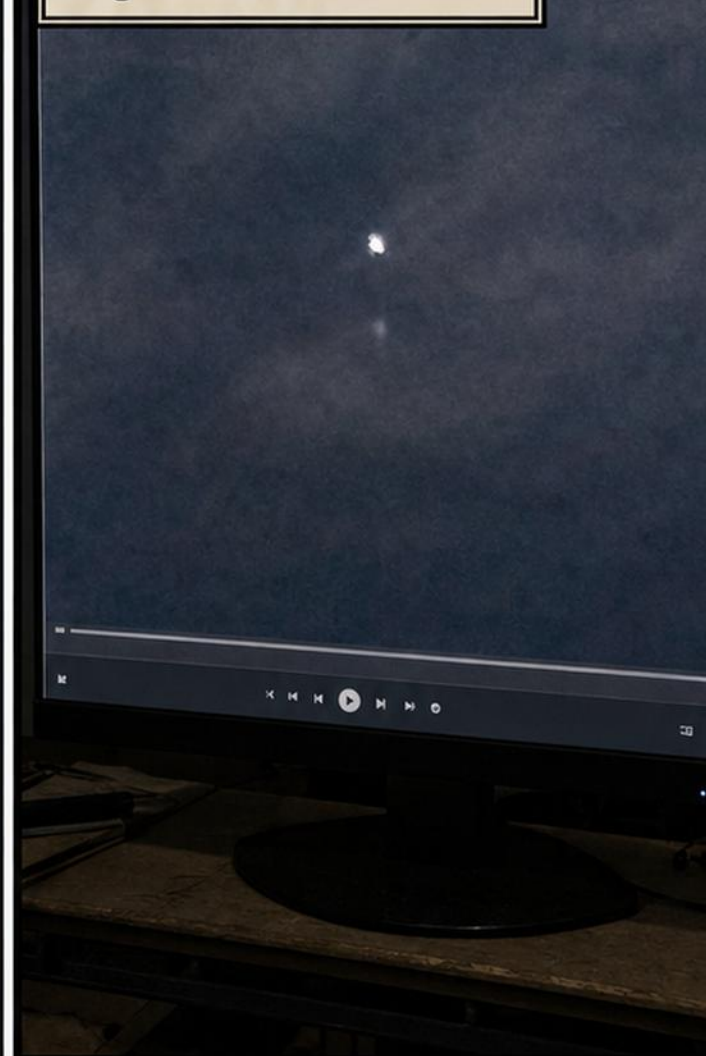

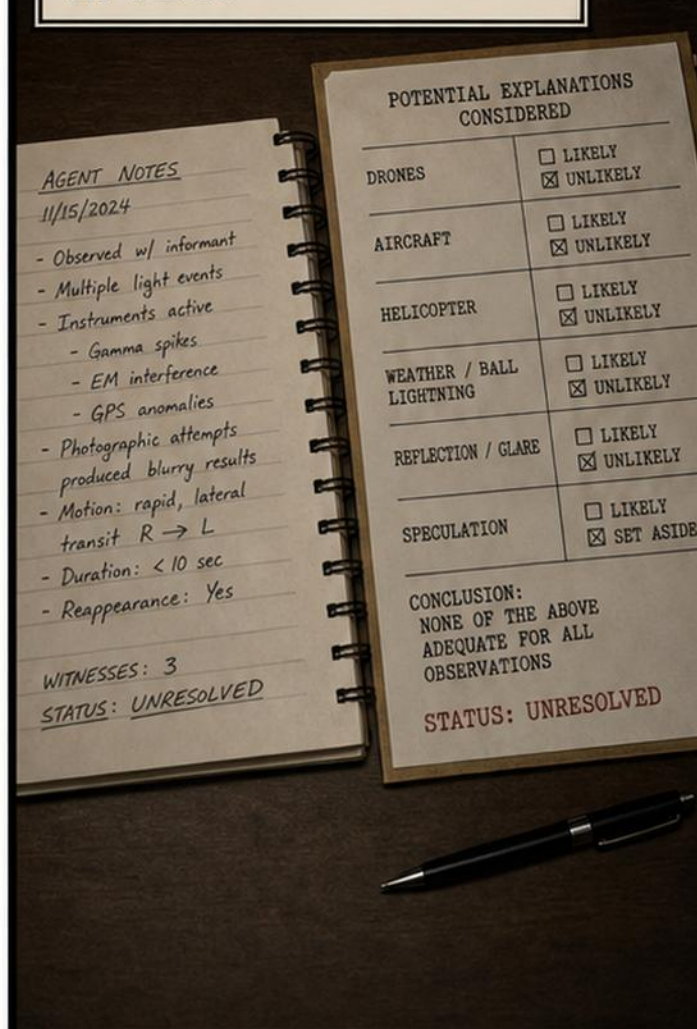

On June 12, 2026,
the files entered the
public record.

The release did not
prove what the
lights were.

It showed why obvious
explanations were not enough for the witnesses
on site.

The spectacular part was simple: the mystery had
witnesses, instruments,
and a file.
