

DREAM ANIME CHRONICLES

14

THE GAUNTLET → THAT CHOSE ← MERCY

Before Ameryx Xyr guarded realities, they were only a student who noticed when fear crossed another face.

The class demonstration promised a harmless glimpse at the forces between worlds.

Ameryx watched their peers more carefully than the glowing instruments.

That was why they saw the first crack before anyone called it impossible.

The crack did not
open into knowledge.

It opened into hunger.

Ameryx felt the same darkness take
their own hands,
voice, and name.

Then the gauntlet
found the one victim
still trying to save
everyone else.

The gauntlet
named the enemy and
offered a clean command.

Purge.

Ameryx fired
divine light at the
nearest possessed
friend.

The demon screamed,
but so did the person
it was using as
a shield.

So Ameryx bent
the classroom away
from the demons.

Walls became sanctuary.
Desks became gates.
Shadows became cages.

For one breath,
reality obeyed.

Then Ameryx saw
the cost: a perfect
world with their
classmates edited
out of it.

The gauntlet
opened time next.

It showed futures
where the breach
closed quickly.

Seal the
possessed away.

Erase the moment
before they were taken.

Win fast enough,
and call the missing
mercy.

Ameryx stopped asking which future was quickest.

They remembered the dark inside their own name.

A victim was still a person, even when the demon wore their face.

The gauntlet did not need a command. It needed a guardian.

Ameryx let the
gauntlet calculate
every wound without forgetting who
carried it.

Reality bent softly
this time, making
paths out instead
of prisons.

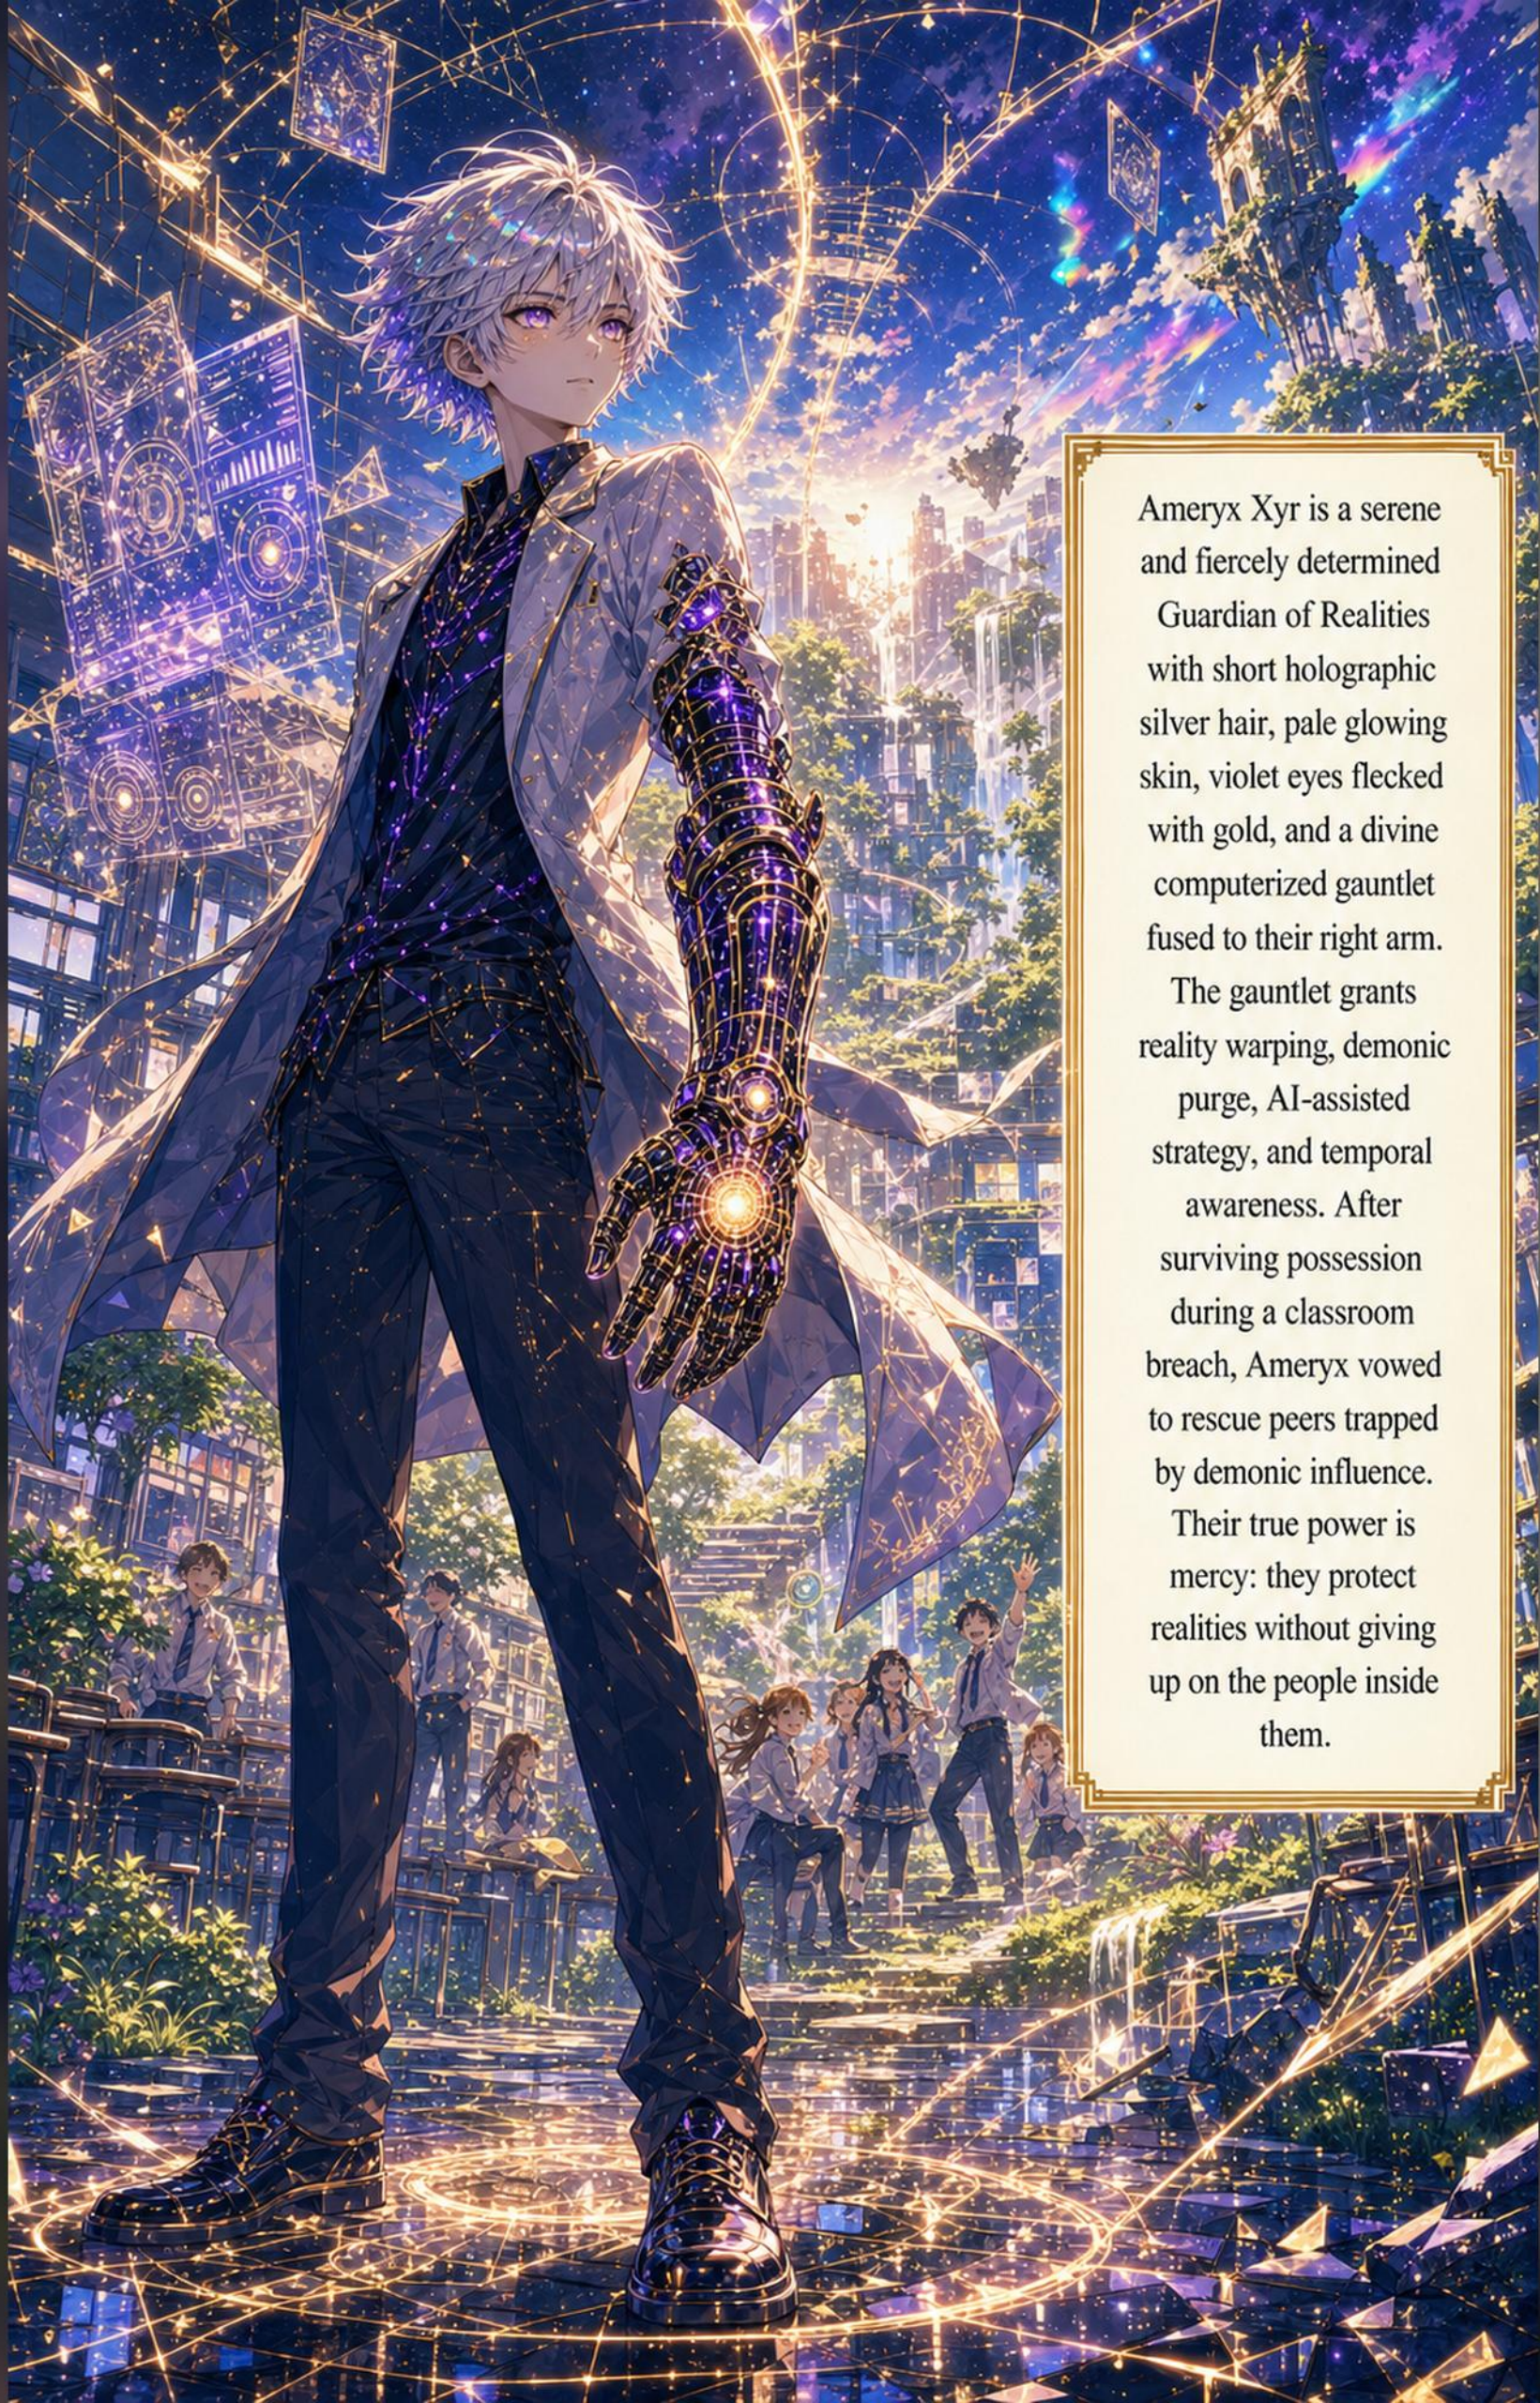

The purge did not
erase the possessed.

It returned them.

Ameryx Xyr is a serene and fiercely determined Guardian of Realities with short holographic silver hair, pale glowing skin, violet eyes flecked with gold, and a divine computerized gauntlet fused to their right arm.

The gauntlet grants reality warping, demonic purge, AI-assisted strategy, and temporal awareness. After surviving possession during a classroom breach, Ameryx vowed to rescue peers trapped by demonic influence.

Their true power is mercy: they protect realities without giving up on the people inside them.