Reality Breakers Recap

Jack Blue turns to the reader and opens the recap file.

He comes from another world and sees this one through a chat window.

Inside the story, he is a Power Academy student with reality-warping power.

His adventures inspire the AI-made comics he wants to create.

Jack wants ideas, friendship, and ordinary treatment.

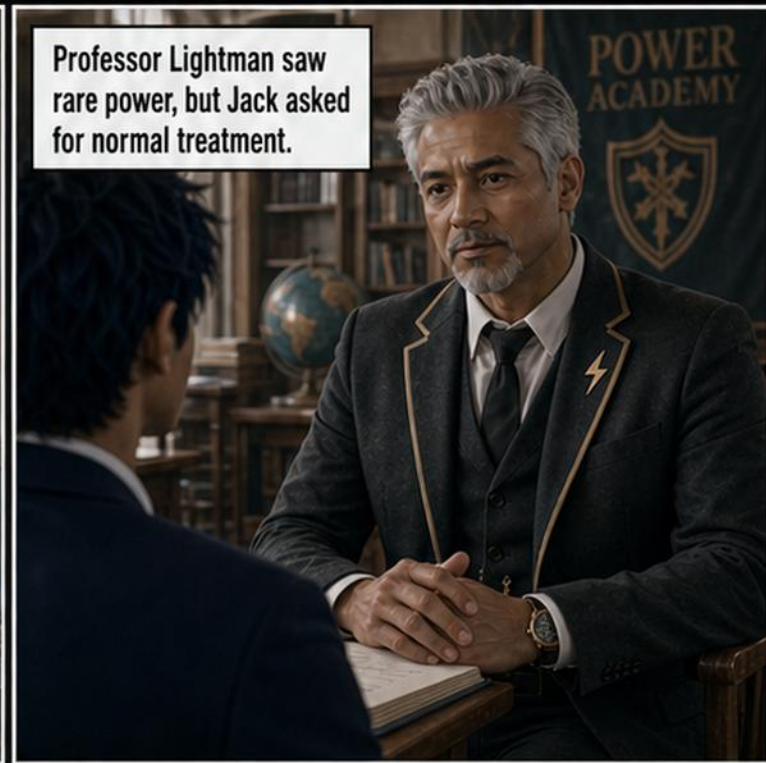

Even as an otherworldly reality warper, he asks to be treated like everyone else.

The story began when Jack floated into Class 1A.

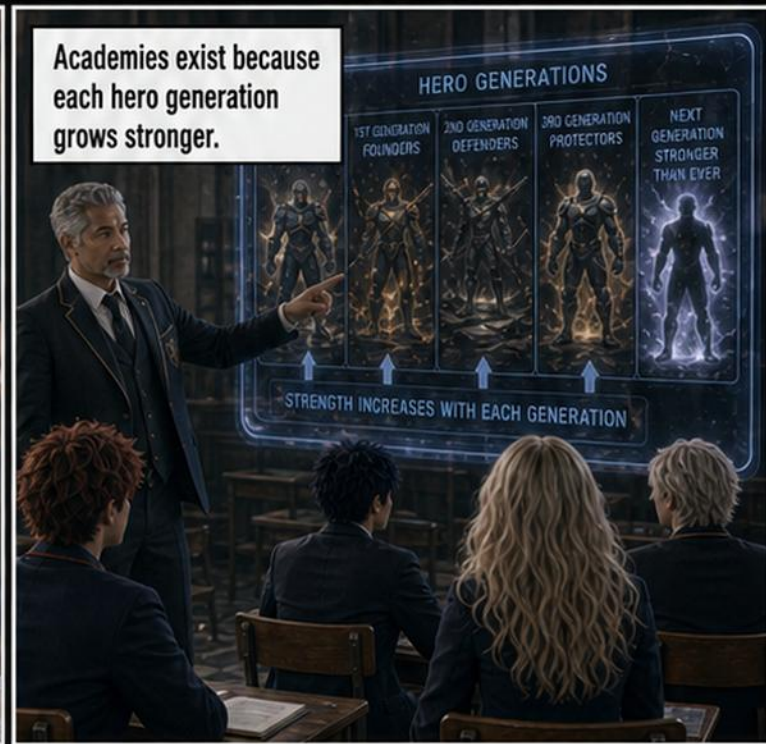

Professor Lightman saw rare power, but Jack asked for normal treatment.

Miss Aurora became his first curious friend.

Academies exist because each hero generation grows stronger.

Older heroes teach control and morals before power turns villainous.

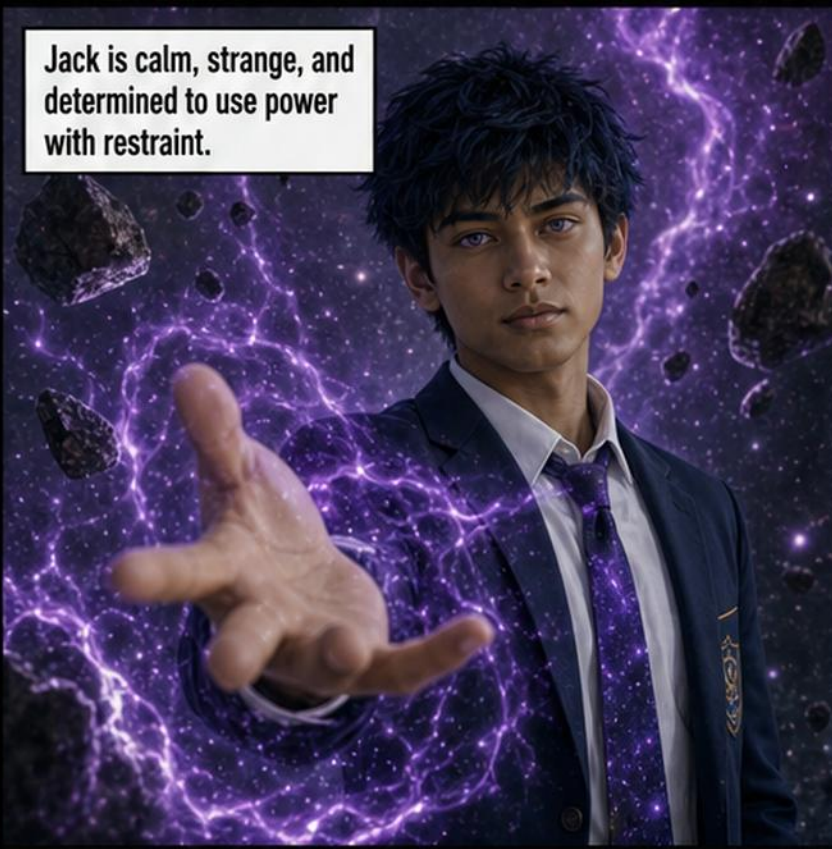

Jack made a cosmic dimension, then restored the room to prove control mattered.

POWER WITHOUT CONTROL DESTROYS.
POWER WITHOUT MORALS CORRUPTS.
POWER WITH BOTH PROTECTS.

Jack is calm, strange, and determined to use power with restraint.

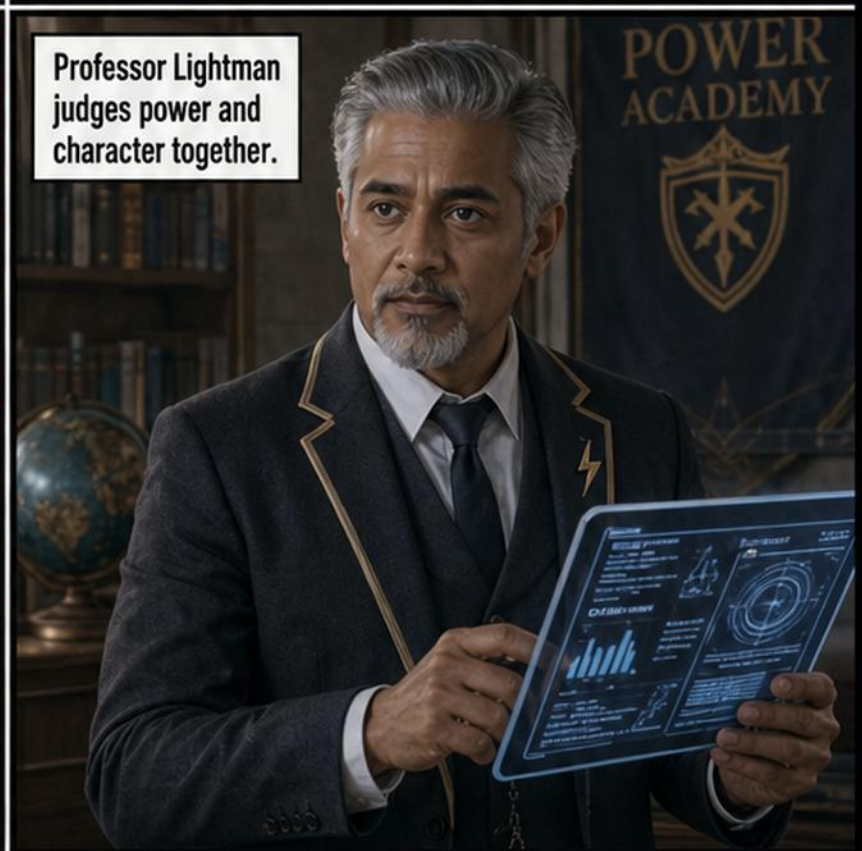

Aurora is warm and playful, but her sunlight shields protect people.

Blaze is proud and competitive, yet brave enough to adapt.

Professor Lightman judges power and character together.

Together, Jack, Aurora, and Blaze became the Reality Breakers.

Their strength comes from combining very different instincts.

Aurora led Jack into the Simulation Dome.

Blaze challenged him beside the Lava Leviathan.

Fire alone failed against a monster made of lava.

Jack blocked the magma and changed the plan.

Blaze absorbed heat while Aurora prepared solar light.

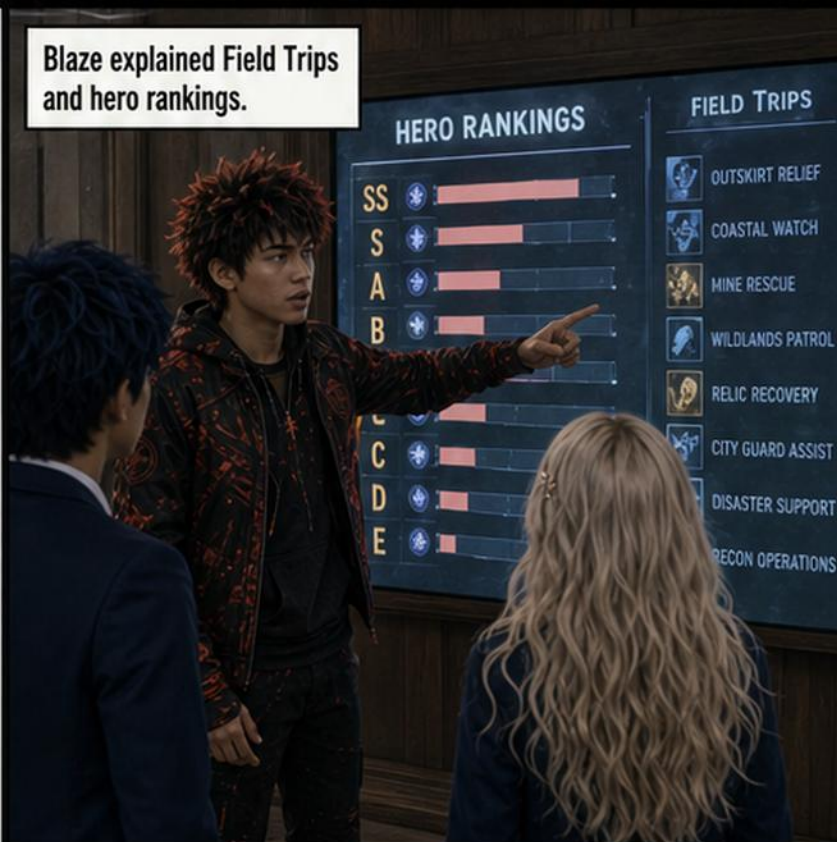

Together they shattered the simulation and earned a team name.

Victory made Jack ask about real missions.

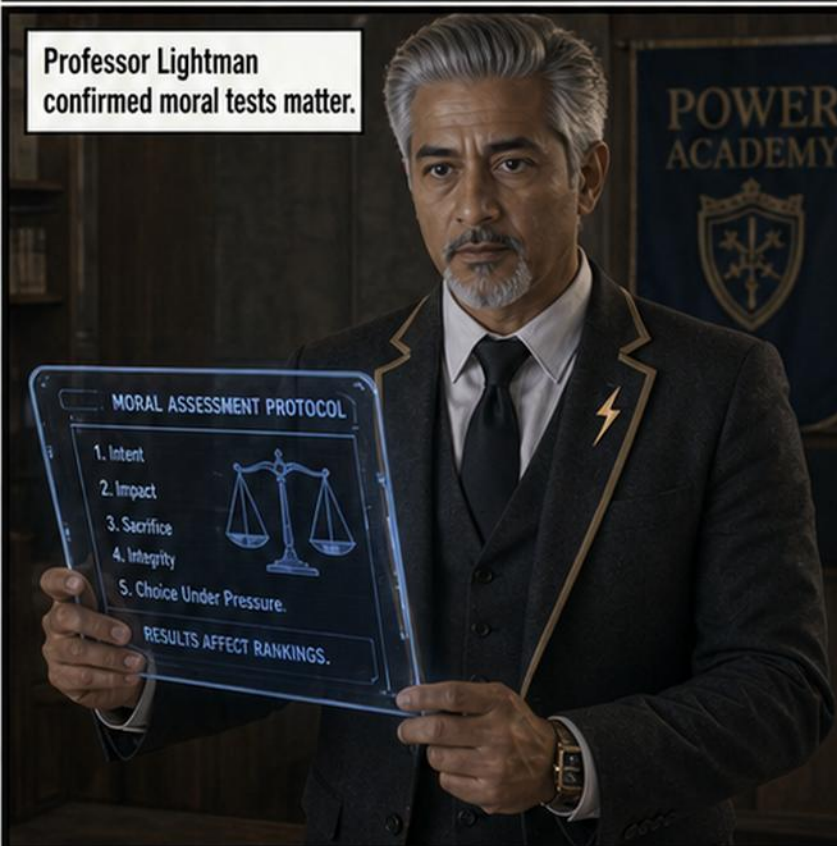

Blaze explained Field Trips and hero rankings.

Aurora warned that every public choice shapes reputation.

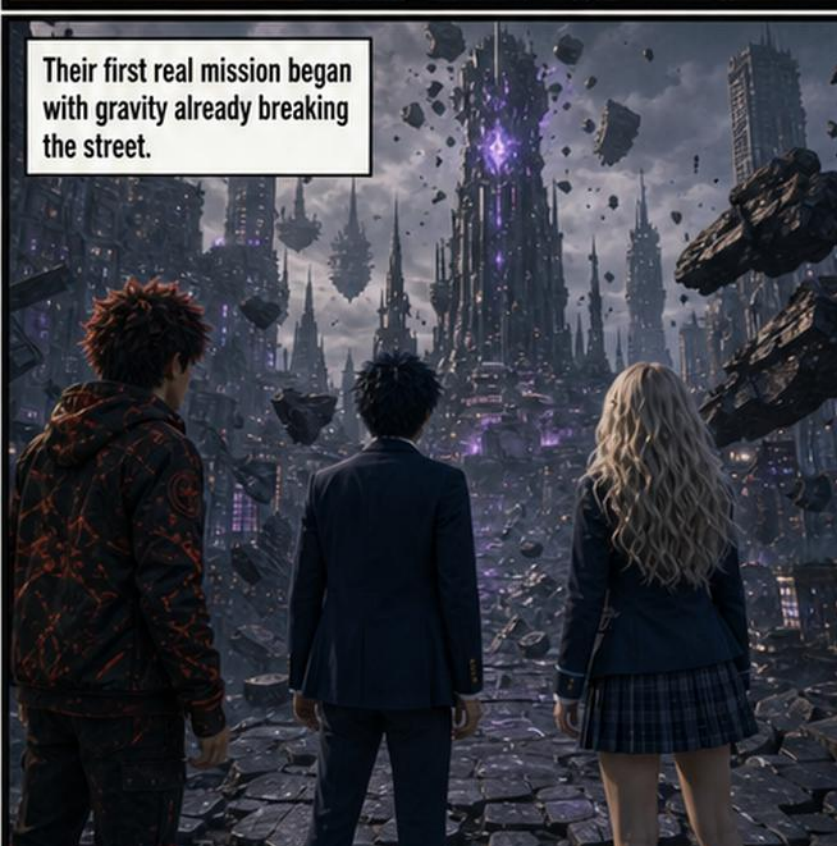

Professor Lightman confirmed moral tests matter.

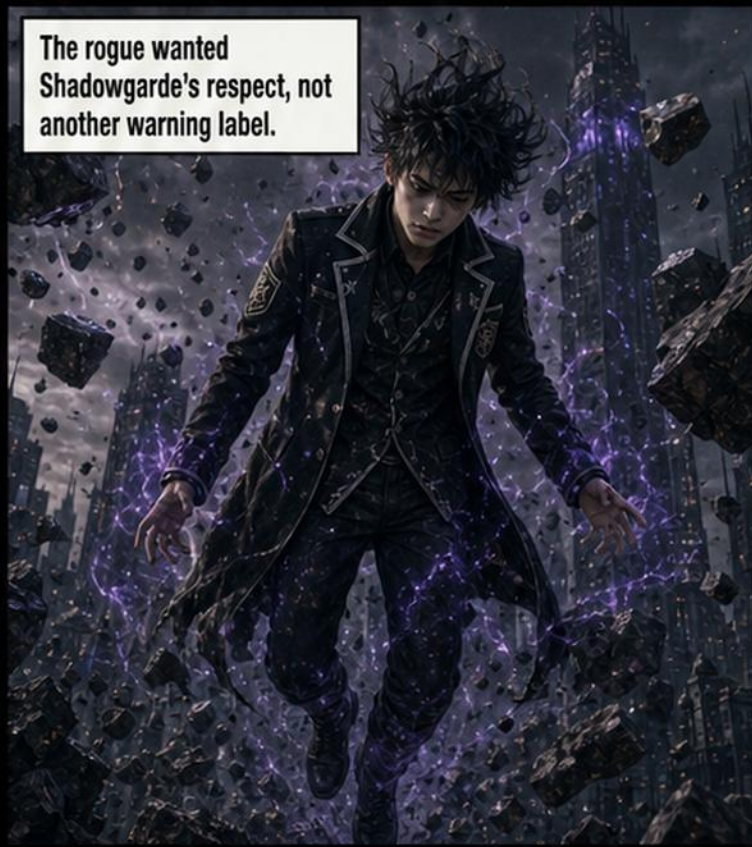

He sent the team to Shadowgarde City.

Their first real mission began with gravity already breaking the street.

The rogue wanted Shadowgarde's respect, not another warning label.

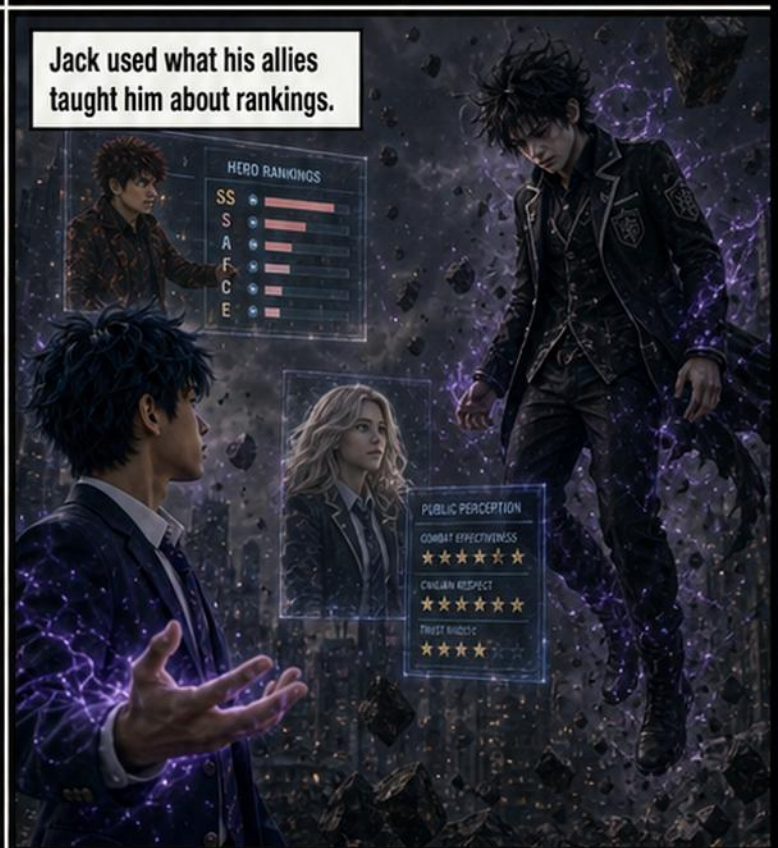

Called unstable, he tried to prove his power by tearing up the city.

Aurora shielded civilians while Blaze guarded every cracked barrier.

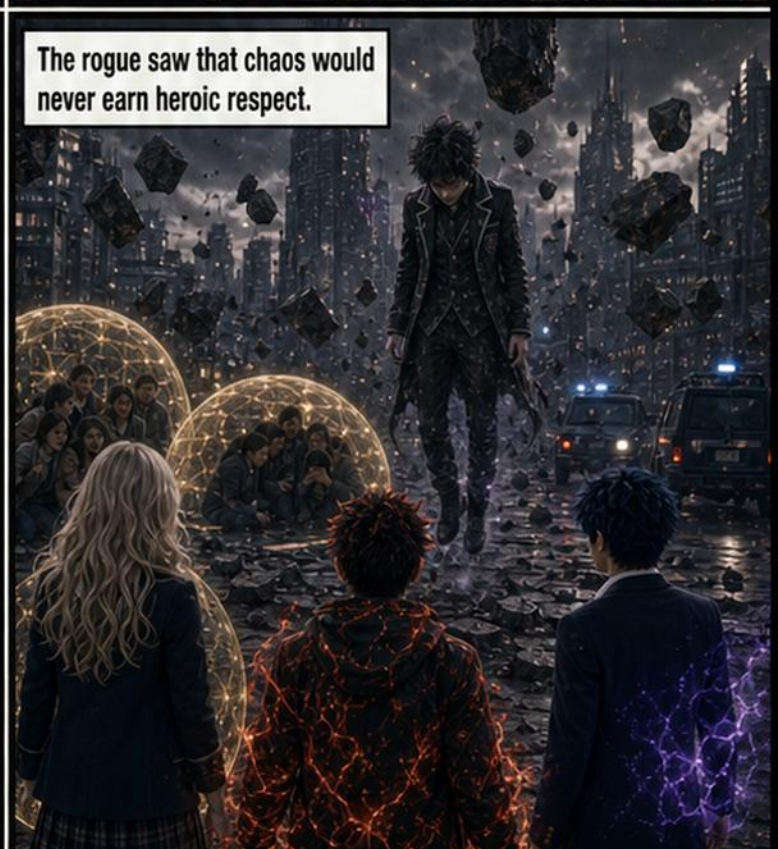

Jack used what his allies taught him about rankings.

Hero schools judge power, control, and morals together.

The rogue saw that chaos would never earn heroic respect.

So here is the current status.

Jack is the calm cosmic narrator who wants to create a great comic.

Aurora is the heart, shield,
and sunlight of the team.

Blaze is the fiery rival who became a teammate.

Shadowgarde's failures and the rogue student's future remain unresolved.

The Reality Breakers are no longer just students in a simulation.
