

SUPERHERO MANDROID

THE BRIMSTONE CONFESSION

A SILENCED EXORCIST BECOMES THE MONSTER HE WARNED ABOUT.

Before the portals,
Father Paul Teethings
knew what possession
looked like.

There was thrashing,
strange voices, and
tongues that made
the candles shake.

Scripture, a cross,
and holy water
could still bring
a soul back.

Paul trained for
that work because
he wanted people
free.

Then portals
opened above
the city.

The possessed
stopped sounding
like suffering
people.

They started
becoming literal
monsters.

Everyone saw Superhero Mandroid
fight the same beasts
on the news, but the
church offered only
silence.

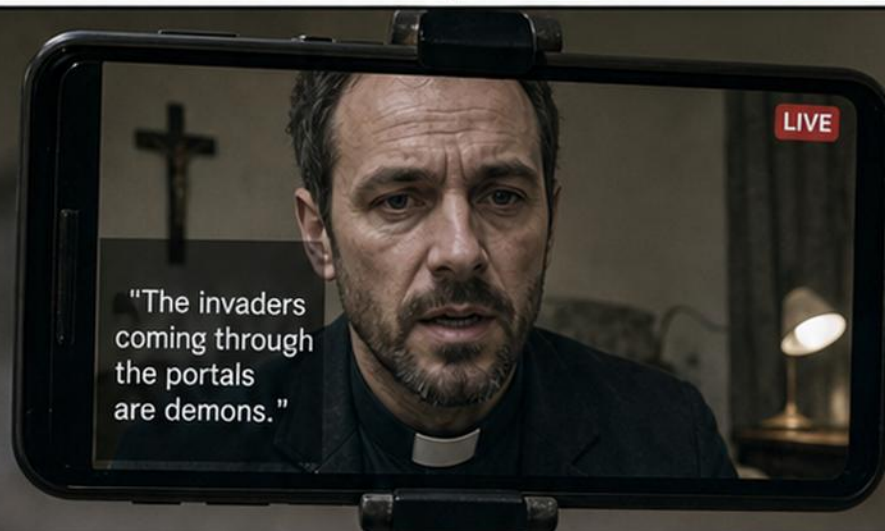

Secrets are tools of the devil, Paul told himself.

So he said the quiet part out loud.

The invaders coming through the portals are demons.

The message went viral before it vanished.

His superiors stripped his title and called him the deceiver.

The betrayal
blackened his heart
and dulled his faith.

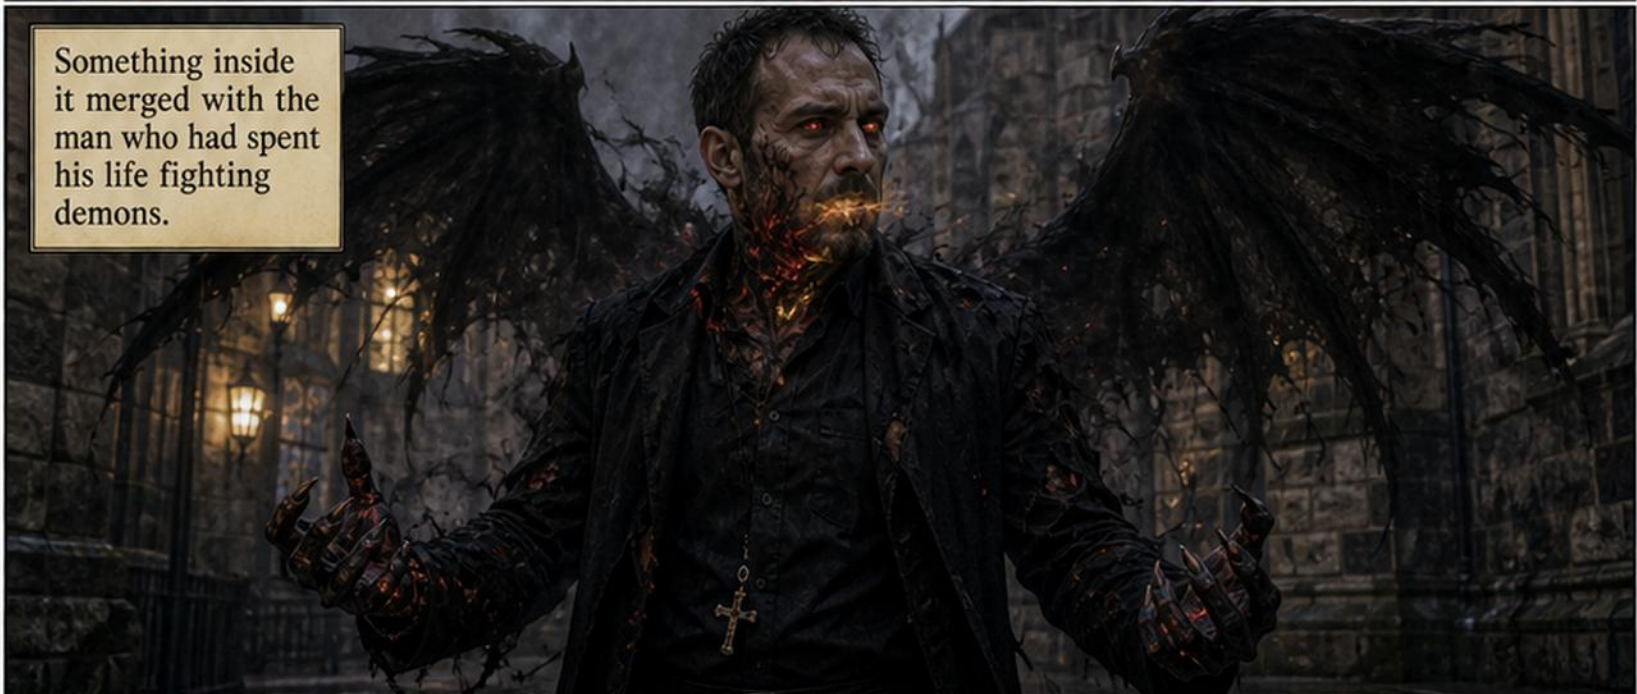

That was enough
of an opening.

A portal split
the air where
he stood.

Something inside
it merged with the man who had spent
his life fighting
demons.

Rage gave the demon wings.

Paul knew every tool his superiors reached for.

Holy water became steam before it touched him.

The cross could not command a man who knew exactly how it would be raised.

But prayer reached where tools could not.

Paul lunged to silence the prayers.

Superhero Mandroid
arrived between
rage and blood.

His holo shield
caught the force
meant for the men
who condemned Paul.

"I have no quarrel
with you, Paul forced through smoke. Then he vanished in
brimstone.

In a dark alley, the demon asked for revenge.

The servant Paul had been answered with duty.

Mandroid's shield had shown him another way to be strong.

Title or no title, I still belong to God.

I will protect people.
I will speak the truth.
And this demon will not own me.

